Russian Masses Batter at Kovel Line in Vain

London. Sept. 23.—The furious battle for Kovel is unabated. The Russians are hurling men at its fortifications in masses as heavy as those of the drive in the first days in June, but the resistance has stiffened and they have let heen able to break through. The Germans constantly are sending minforcements to the battered Austian line. Some of these are being fawn from the Western front—this is widenced by the fact that the Kaiser's moops there have attempted no counser stack—and some from the Balkan

The Eassian losses apparently are leavy. Berlin tells of the destruction of an entire corps of Siberians and Astrograd admits that massed attacks ande no progress. Unless some of the Germans can be diverted to another front by the renewal of a heavy Allied five the Russians must use many more before they can hope to break through. In the Carpathians, where there are as Germans to bulwark the Austrian lie, the Czar's troops continue to make subgress. It seems only a question of a stort time now before they win the Modas Pass, guarded by Kiriibaba.

Another ridge has failen to the Russians, giving them control of the Kiribaba road. Once the road is cleared the way will be open for more than a success here, too, will force the germans to move troops south and the easier Brussion's task in the

THIS exposition is the selection of America and Europe. It is a CLASSIC assemblage of fashions in all grades, covering all the clothing the majority of New York men require for the coming season. Every group is of highest existing rank, the best we could find, or have made, at its price. To make sure of this, we sent our commissioners abroad to make personal selection of merchandise, advised with the recognized authorities on men's fashions, had our experts go carefully over the product of America's factories and workshops, organized our own shops in the plants of the better makers of men's clothing in several cities, suggested improvements in various directions, and put more individuality and greater serviceability into the merchandise, without in the majority of cases
